Ladner murder case set for Grand Jury

By SHARON WALLS
The Janice Ladner murder case will be included on the docket when a Hancock County Grand Jury convenes during the three-week term of Circuit Court opening Monday.

Charles Edward (Chuck) Depreo, 18, of Kiln has been charged with capital murder in the April 8 shooting death of the estranged wife of former State Representative Earl "Buck" Ladner.

Investigating officers reported Mrs. Ladner had been shot with a small caliber gun. The body was then covered with quilts and sheets and set on fire. The flames destroyed her Kiln home.

Six-year-old Joy Lynn, the victim's daughter and a witness to the incident, was wounded in the incident, but escaped by running 500 yards to a neighbors' home. Testimony from the girl led to the arrest of Depreo three weeks later in Norfolk, Va., where he was stationed with the U.S. Navy, investigators reported.

Depreo is also charged with arson and aggravated assault with intent to murder in connection with the incident. He is represented by James E. Atchison of Mobile, Ala.

District Attorney Albert Necaise is expected to present the state's case to the grand jury.

The Hancock County Sheriff's office will also present cases of burglary and larceny, possession of drugs, and theft to the Grand Jury, according to Chief Deputy Ronnie Peterson.

From the Waveland Police Department one case of several counts of burglary, one of check forgery, one of uttering checks, one murder, one possession and manufacture of marijuana, and a possible case of manslaughter pending action by the district attorney will be presented to the grand jury during its three-week term, according to Chief Donald Dorn.

Free: pier with potholes, see Waveland Council

By EDGAR PEREZ
Waveland Councilman Charles Johnson, complaining of a relative who was injured when she fell into a gaping hole in the Ladner Pier, this week proposed the City divest itself of the facility.

"Let's give it away," Johnson stated at the Council's regular meeting Tuesday night.

"I sure would feel better if we didn't have that responsibility any longer," the Councilman told his colleagues.

Councilman Herman Yarborough explained that recent high winds and waves have washed out the pier's base in places, causing the formation of deep potholes along the edges of an asphalt topped roadway on the structure.

Johnson suggested the pier might be turned over to the Waveland Civic Association or possibly the Waveland American Legion Post.

"And what makes you think they might want it," queried Councilman

Albert Grass.

Mayor John Longo proposed the Council invite officers of the Waveland Civic Association to the Council's next meeting July 19 to discuss the matter.

"We might be able to work out something with the Civic Association on the pier, but we certainly are not going to be able to saddle them with a $2,000 or $3,000 yearly maintenance bill," Longo stated.

Johnson also urged the Council to begin, in a small way if necessary, to install sidewalks along the pedestrian approaches to the Waveland Elementary School.

"We've talked about it for years but we never do anything about it...I think sidewalks would be the biggest asset we could provide for our school children," Johnson noted.

The Council agreed to a suggestion from Longo to immediately include sidewalks on a one-block stretch of school property along St. Joseph Street and to place the matter of additional sidewalks on the group's next meeting agenda.

The one block of sidewalks along the school will be included by change order in a current street paving program, the Council agreed.

4th mishaps land three in hospitals

By RICH ADAMS

Three Waveland residents were injured, two seriously, in two separate mishaps during the Fourth of July holiday.

Police said two Waveland teenagers were hurt in a non-collision accident on South Beach Boulevard Tuesday night and a third youth sustained head injuries in Gulfport Saturday.

Kevin De Haan and Brian Henton, Waveland 16-year-olds, were injured Tuesday night when a pickup truck driven by De Haan went out of control in the 900 block of South Beach Boulevard in Waveland and overturned, according to Chief Donald Dorn of the Waveland Police Department.

De Haan and Henton were taken to Hancock General Hospital for emergency treatment and transferred to Gulfport Memorial Hospital.

De Haan's late Wednesday was reported in poor condition following exploratory surgery. He is lodged in the hospital's intensive care unit, suffering fractured ribs, fractured clavicle, and possible punctured lung, a hospital spokesman said.

Henton is listed in fair to good condition, the hospital reported. Investigating officers said Henton apparently suffered a broken leg.

Waveland Auxiliary Policeman Walter Turcotte, investigating officer, said no charges have been filed pending further investigation of the incident which occurred about 8:05 p.m. Tuesday.

Keith De Haan, 18, brother of the injured Kevin De Haan, was also involved in an automobile accident on June 28 which left five area residents injured.

Keith De Haan was not injured in that accident, police said.

The De Haan brothers are grandsons of Lester Haverty, owner of Haverty's

Area building permits near $1 million mark

By RICH ADAMS

The unincorporated area of Hancock County and municipalities of Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Pass Christian issued building permits on construction valued at almost $1 million.

Permits for work in the four areas totaling $927,527 were issued in May, according to figures issued this week by Mississippi Research and Development Center's Gulf coast branch in Long Beach.

The unincorporated area of Hancock County issued 14 residential permits totaling $195,000, and three repair permits valued at $5,400, the Center reported.

No commercial permits for the Hancock County area were issued during the period.

The City of Bay St. Louis issued a total of 14 permits with construction value listed at $414,000.

Waveland issued 23 permits for May on construction amounting to $174,000.

Pass Christian issued 12 building permits during the month on an estimated $84,000 in construction.

A breakdown of the Bay St. Louis permits shows four residential permits were issued with a $165,000 value, and seven repair permits with a value of $43,000, the Center's branch office reported.

One commercial permit was issued in the Bay for $9,000.

Waveland issued three residential permits in May on work with a value of $94,000 and permits for 20 repair and alteration jobs with a total value of $80,000.

No commercial permits were issued by Waveland during May.

Pass Christian issued one residential permit and one commercial permit, valued at $43,000 and $8,000, respectively.

Ten alteration and repair permits were issued in May in Pass Christian with a value of $33,000, the MRDC reported.

TransAm takes over at Stennis, County ok's ten-year contract

By RICH ADAMS

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors unanimously approved a fixed-based operator contract between the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission and TransAm International Corp. assigning Stennis Field operation to the corporation.

The contract proposal was presented to the board by W.W. Webre, commission executive director, in a regular meeting Monday morning.

TransAm International, a corporation to be chartered in Mississippi by Mel Anderson of Jonesboro, Ark., agreed to the final provisions of the lease at a Port and Harbor commission meeting last Thursday night.

Webre said the operators plan "to develop the airport into a fully operational facility."

Edd Conn, owner of Conn Aircraft Sales and Service in Jonesboro, will serve as operator of Stennis Field for TransAm.

The corporation will have responsibility for the hangar, administration building, and the parking apron.

"These men have the financial ability to do outstanding things to the airport," said Webre.

"The Port and Harbor Commission would feel terrifically relieved if this would come about," he added.

The contract calls for a 10 year minimum lease, under which Anderson and TransAm will pay $750 rent per month plus a return on aviation fuel sales.

Conn, who was responsible for operation of a similar facility in Jonesboro, increased the traffic there from 15 planes to 90 planes in a period of a few years, Webre told the board.

The commission will receive 6 cents per gallon on aviation fuel and 8 cents per gallon on jet fuel up to 10,000 gallons a month. After the 10,000 mark, TransAm will pay 2 cents on aviation fuel and 4 cents on jet fuel, Webre reported.

"With better management and financing, Stennis will operate as an airport," Webre said.

"It can be a profit making airport...and fulfill an existing need in the community," he added.

Also at Monday's meeting, Webre sought and received board approval of the commission's termination of a lease on the Bayou Cadet Marina held by Neils Neilson. The action came after weeks of turmoil at the marina involving disputes between local fishermen, Neilson, and the Port and Harbor Commission.

The dispute reached a peak June 1 when Neilson had two local fishermen arrested for allegedly trespassing.

A special meeting was called by the Port and Harbor Commission and the possibility of terminating the lease was discussed.

The lease was officially terminated with Neilson June 21, and the commission was authorized to reimburse Neilson $2,268 for labor and material he expended for capital improvements to a concession stand at the marina.

The money, according to Webre, will come from the commission's construction fund.

Until a new arrangement can be negotiated, the marina is under the supervision of two commission custodial employees.

Also, the Port and Harbor Commission's Bayou Cadet subcommittee is considering a temporary, lease arrangement with the Bayou Cadet fishermen's association until a permanent arrangement can be advertised.

Relief may be forthcoming in the form of an anchorage basin proposed for construction, according to Webre.

Thigpen recalls Turn of The Century - When the world was ten miles wide

By S. GRADY THIGPEN

When the world was ten miles wide (which means when people were limited in their travels to short distances from home), the energy used for every purpose was produced at home, on the farm.

Instead of the gasoline and diesel oils we use today for energy, we had in the old days, hay, corn and oats produced on the farms.

Instead of the supermarkets of today from which we get most of our personal energy, we grew all our food for man and beast on the farm, with some additional sources from streams and woodlands.

Energy from other sources, of which there are many today, simply was not available back in the good old days.

Back when I was growing up, if we went anywhere we walked, getting our energy from food off the farm, or we rode a horse which was bread and reared on the farm and got its energy from oats, corn and hay produced at home, or we rode in buggies or wagons, or carts with horses pulling them.

For heavy work, like hauling logs and freight, oxen were much used in 1900. Oxen were used almost all together for logging. The oxen got their energy, of course from hay and other feed crops produced on the farm.

Oxen had one big advantage over horses and mules for heavy work—they could work part of the day, and then graze on the abundant grass which grew everywhere, and not require as much feed as horses and mules. Since I came to Picaune in 1917, oxen for some years were the main power for logging jobs for saw mills.

Back in 1900 we had no need for Arab oil, and not one cent was spent for oil or any other products of a foreign country. On up into the early twenties, we did not spend thousands and thousands of dollars for big motor trucks and for high priced cars, and then many thousands more to make them run.

In 1900, a man bought a wagon for less than $50 and raised on the farm all the animals he needed to pull it and all the feed to maintain them in good order.

People were more independent in 1900 than today. They, generally speaking, owed no one. The old farm was a self-supporting entity. It produced everything needed right there on the farm. In the hard times of around 1900, I heard my father say he spent less than $25 in a whole year in stores.

Everything we needed was produced on the farm, food and even much of the clothing.

My mother made all our clothes, our grandma knitted the socks and stockings for the family.

Back during the 1890's and early 1900's when I can first remember on up into the early 1920's we did not travel around at anything like the speeds of today, nor as comfortable as today, but we got THERE just the same.

And in the rural area where I grew up, I never knew of or heard of anyone being bogged down in debt.

In 1900, we lived a simple and much less complicated life but we did not have many of the conveniences and appliances that now make life easier and more pleasant in many ways.

Back in the old days when I was growing up, I never heard of even one traffic death, while now in a small town like Picaune, traffic deaths occur often, even weekly at times.

When the world was 10 miles wide back 75 and more years ago, all the women and girls wore bonnets. I have often wondered why they quit wearing them. Bonnets protected them from the sun and from the cold winds of winter, and I always thought they were attractive.

Type, or shape, and the color of a bonnet told much about a woman's age. If she was more than 60 years of age she likely wore a black bonnet, made of silk with quilted overbrim of several thicknesses of starched flour sack material with a ruffle of black lace around the brim.

Also, it would have long wide ties. A woman with this type bonnet was most likely called "Grandma." I remember the older women with this type bonnets on, used to sit in the women's A-men corner at the preacher's left at the country Baptist church I attended when a boy.

These older women also wore black or dark dresses on Sunday. Younger married women usually wore white, or lighter colored bonnets. The bonnets this group wore were made about like those of the older women, but they usually made their bonnets of materials and in shapes to be more easily laundered.

All the women had what they called back then Sunday bonnets, which were better and more attractive, and were for wear on Sundays or special occasions. All bonnets were starched and ironed to make them more attractive and stay out of the wearer's face.

Most women had what they called a work bonnet, to be worn when working in the garden or anywhere where it was easily soiled, just as they had work clothes.

I don't remember ever seeing bonnets for sale in stores. It seems that the women made bonnets themselves at home which accounts for the fact that the bonnets, while all alike in their purpose, were made to suit the whims of each woman who made them.

Young unmarried ladies, if I remember correctly, wore hats of various kinds, often with feathers on them or other decorations, for Sunday wear, but like the older women, wore bonnets on weekdays and at work to protect them from the sun and the cold.

The little girls, like the older ones, just had to have their bonnets, too. The more her bonnet looked like her older sister's, the better it was liked.

(Editor's note: S. G. Thigpen has written (5) books of old time stories about Pearl River and Hancock Counties.)

State Medical Association warns on heat exhaustion

TIPS TO KEEP COOL

(Presented as a Public Service by the Mississippi State Medical Association)

Is the heat wearing you down?

It's hot in most of the United States in mid-summer. In the desert and in the south it's even hotter. But July and August is not all over, even in the mountains.

Regardless of whether you blame the heat or the humidity, it's still hot.

There's nothing you can do about the outside temperature. Unless you are fortunate enough to have an air conditioned office or shop, home and auto, there's nothing much you can do about it inside either.

But there are some things you can do to be more comfortable, things that will help you beat the heat, the Mississippi State Medical Association points out.

Stay out of the sun as much as possible, especially during the middle of the day when rays are hottest. Wear light, loose clothing, the less the better. The ladies have an edge over the men in this respect.

Drink more liquids than usual but take extra salt only on your physician's advice, particularly if you have liver or kidney trouble or a heart condition.

Take a shower or dip in the pool once or twice a day to cool off. Get plenty of rest and sleep. Eat your regular diet and don't go overboard on cold cuts and salads, unless you like them anyway.

Get up early in the morning to do your heavy work on the lawn or garden. Or work at dusk in the evening. Try to avoid heavy exertion during the hottest hours of the day.

You need exercise in the summer as well as in the winter, but don't overdo it, especially on extra hot days. Don't overdo physical exertion whether at work or play.

IRS notifies tax preparers to file form

Employers of tax return preparers and self-employed preparers are required to file an information return by July 31, the Internal Revenue Service said.

The form to be used, Form 5717, "Annual List of Income Tax Return Preparers," asks for each employee preparer's name, identification number, and principal place of work. The form covers the period from July 1, 1977 to June 30, 1978. Failure to file by the deadline can lead to a $100 penalty.

A parent company filing for its subsidiaries should file a separate Form 5717 for each subsidiary, the IRS said. Foreign corporations, partnerships, and self-employed persons who prepare U.S. income tax returns or claims for refunds must also file Form 5717, according to the IRS.

A foreign preparer who does not have an employer identification number or social security number may get one by sending Form SS-4 to the Internal Revenue Service, 11601 Roosevelt Blvd., Philadelphia, PA 19155.

The more relaxed outdoor life of the summer months has many advantages to compensate for the heat. Stay relaxed and use common sense, and you can beat the heat—at least somewhat.

Boston Pops' new season airs July 9

Henry Mancini, Academy Award-winning composer-arranger, is guest on the premiere program of the new season of "Evening at Pops" with Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

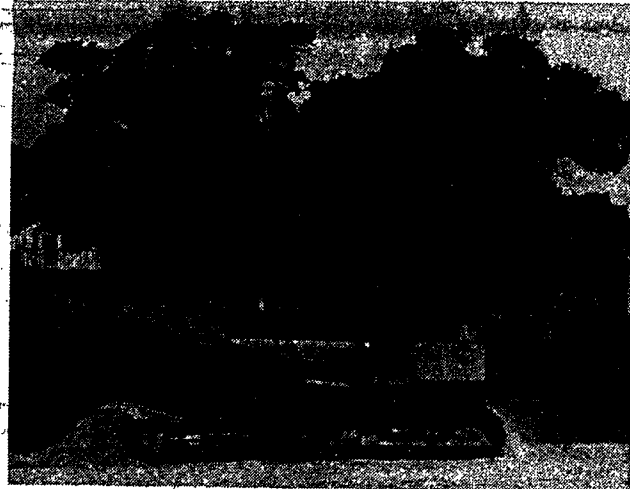

The program can be seen at 7 p.m., Sunday, July 9, on the Mississippi ETV Network.

Mancini plays a piano medley of selections from his popular movie themes including "Moment to Moment," "Two for the Road" and "Sunflower."

The premiere program also features popular ballads—"Charade," "Days of Wine and Roses" and "Dear Heart," as well as Mancini classics, "The Pink Panther" and "Moon River." He also performs his own arrangement for flute of "Flight of the Bumblebee" by Rimsky-Korsakov.

This year marks the 49th year that Fiedler has led the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Since he became Pops conductor in 1930, Fiedler has solidified his position as America's premier conductor of light classical music. He takes as his guide Rosini's remark that "every kind of music is good, except the boring kind."

News from the Church of St. Ann

A thought for the day from the library of Father Canisius Hayes, pastor, St. Ann's Parish.

Perhaps the unforgivable sin is to have lived with something beautiful and not have recognized it.

Mass First Friday, July 7, will be at 9 a.m. in St. Ann Church.

St. Ann's Altar Society communion Mass will be at 5 p.m. Saturday, July 8.

St. Ann's Altar Society will hold its monthly meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 11, in parish hall.

Seventy-three children registered for religious vacation classes which started June 26 and will continue through this week in St.

Ann's parish hall, Clermont Harbor, with the Rosary as theme for the classes.

The program consists of prayers, salute to the flag, hymn practice, costume making and a short recreation and snack.

The children will pantomime the Joyful Mysteries of the Rosary at 11 a.m. Friday, July 7, for their parents and friends; pre-school children will present a finger play.

The group attended Mass Wednesday offered by Father Hayes for the repose of the soul of Father Francis Donahue, S.T., former pastor of St. Ann's.

Teachers and helpers for the program, under the direction of Sister Mary Cornelia, are Claudia Lang, Mary Klein, Sandra Boswell, Kathy Fusich, Carol Maybe, Dineen Curet, Polly Boswell, Bunny Jeanfreux, Barbara Ladner, Anita Santiago, Shawn Ladner and Cathy Curet.

Sow seeds now for fall color in home garden

JULY GARDEN GUIDE

July is a good time to sow seeds for color during the fall months. Annuals to be started now are marigolds, petunias, cockscomb, and zinnias. Plant caladiums for late summer color. Root camellias, azaleas, hollies and other ornamentals.

Keep azaleas and camellias well watered. If it continues to stay dry a deep soaking is best for gardens and lawns. Plants in hanging baskets need watering often. If possible, submerge the basket occasionally.

Summer lawns need their last nitrogen application. High-nitrogen fertilizers are 12-6-6 and 10-5-5. Feed chrysanthemums every two weeks with a complete fertilizer. After dahlias have been cut back to about half of their growth give them a light application of fertilizer. Give your flowers and vegetables a balanced feeding of 10-10-5 or 12-8-4.

Keep roses sprayed or dusted to control pests and diseases.

To encourage new growth and flowering on your petunias pinch back the branches.

It is time to divide bearded iris. Replant outer rhizomes from one to two feet apart with the tops of rhizomes about one-eighth inch below the soil that has been thoroughly mixed with compost or well-rotted manure.

Keep your shrubs and flower beds well mulched with bark, pine straw or compost.

If your spring-flowering bulbs haven't been dug and divided in the past three to five years and the clumps are crowded, they need to be divided. Dig up the clumps of bulbs and put them in a shady, dry spot. Leave soil on the clumps.

In a few weeks after the bulbs and the soil have dried out, you'll be able to remove the soil and separate the bulbs without tearing the roots. Store the bulbs in a cool, dry place until time to replant.

Fertilize houseplants every two to four weeks during the summer to promote continued growth. Keep plants well watered and protected from direct sun.

Grow fall tomatoes from suckers by allowing the suckers to become four to six inches long, then snap them off the plant with your thumbnail or pruning shears.

Plant suckers directly in prepared garden soil, or root the suckers first in peat pots. Insert the lower half of the stem in soil. Roots will form on the buried portion of the stem.

SURVEYING IMPROVEMENTS—Charlie Black, left, Bay St. Louis street department supervisor, Mayor Larry Bennett, and Hancock County Beat 3 Supervisor Oscar Peterson survey improvements being made to the beach area between the Uman Avenue pier and the automobile Bay bridge. ### Coast Guard sets hearing on distress signal rule

The Coast Guard will hold a series of public hearings on a proposed regulation requiring recreational boaters to carry visual distress signals when on coastal waters, the Great Lakes and the highseas.

The proposed regulation was published in the Federal Register on Monday, April 10, 1978. It would require recreational boats that are 16 feet and longer to carry both day and night visual distress signals at all times on these waters.

Boats less than 16 feet in length and manually propelled craft would be required to carry night signals when operating on these waters between sunset and sunrise.

The Public Hearings will include:

Tuesday, July 18, 1978 at 7:30 p.m. in Room 125, Hale Boggs Federal Building, 500 Camp Street, New Orleans.

Interested persons are encouraged to attend the public hearings and present oral or written statements on the proposed regulation.

It would help the Coast Guard plan the conduct of the hearings if interested persons would contact the Coast Guard before the hearing and specify the approximate length of time needed for their presentation. However, this advance contact is not mandatory in order to be able to make a presentation.

The contact point is: Captain George Greiner, Marine Safety Council, U.S. Coast Guard, Washington, D.C. 20590; (202) 426-1477. Copies of the proposed regulation can also be obtained from Capt. Greiner.

BABE RUTH BASEBALL

By Mark McCarthy

Coast Electric used an 11-hit barrage and another good defensive effort to walk away with a 10-5 win over Dixie Realty Thursday.

Joe Rye went the distance for the victory, allowing three earned runs while striking out four.

Bobby Richardson, Joe Hubbel, Neal Wilkerson, and David Hanson all struck for two hits.

Wilkerson also added an inside-the-park homer. Jeff Kergsten was the starter and loser for Dixie.

Chuck Goodwin tripled and Ron Lusich singled for the only hits for the losers.

Chasez Construction erupted for four runs in the first inning and never relaxed, finishing with an 18-10 victory. Chasez, who scored in every frame except the 5th, took advantage of eight errors and ten walks to defeat the league leaders and snap their 2-game losing streak.

Andy Perniciaro led the winners at the plate with four hits and Brian Adam had a perfect day with three hits.

Ricky Hardie went the distance to gain his second victory, and aided his cause with a triple and 4 RBI's. Steve Seymour, 3-2 chased in the 2nd, took the loss.

Patterson claims one for Waveland

Anthony Patterson pitched for Waveland's single victory of a four-game weekend of American Legion baseball action.

Patterson claimed the win in the nightcap of a double-header against Slidell Friday in Bay St. Louis. Slidell took the opener, 11-4, on the power of three homers, while Waveland won the second game, 7-5.

Lamar, Russell, and Kurt Poise each batted in two runs to lead the Waveland Legion in the final set.

The Waveland team was stopped by Houma, La., in a two-game home engagement Saturday, 13-0 and 9-2.

Wayne Best was Waveland's pitcher in the first game while Scott Cox took over for the second, giving up four runs on seven hits.

Willie Braddy pounded out his seventh home run of the season in the nightcap and added a double to lead hitting for Waveland. Keith Courtney also got two hits.

Now 12-13 overall and 6-5 in the district, Waveland will meet Memphis today in Piquette.

ACE PITCHER - Ronnie Lyons with a record of 9-0 has been chosen as the ace pitcher of the Bay St. Louis Little League. Lyons will be a seventh grade student this fall at Bay Junior High. Lyons helped his team, Riemann's Stars, win the league championship. (Staff photo - Ellis Cuevas)

Men's City League

Lang, Peters combine for Over the Hill Gang victory

Darrel Lang and Louis Peters slammed two home runs in a row to fire up the Over the Hill Gang to an eleven run second inning in their 21-14 win over the Sluggers in Men's City Softball League action Monday at Commagere Field.

The Sluggers racked up six runs in the first two innings while retiring the Gang batters in order in the bottom of the first.

The Gang let two outs slip away with only one score before Lang made his round-trip hit over the centerfield fence, immediately followed by Peters with a hard-hit ball in almost the same place.

Over the Hill batters rallied to send in eleven runs in the set, a five point jump on the Sluggers.

The fourth inning saw both teams set down three in a row. In the top of the set, the lead batter was out at first on a Sullivan Bell at shortstop and August Price at first combination.

Peters at third, fielded, the hit for another out at first and the third batter hit a pop-up for three away.

Bubba Gillum, at short stop for the Sluggers, made a flying catch to put away the lead Gang batter. The next two in the batting order hit identical high flies to centerfield.

Tom Hawkins was the first Sluggers batter to reach base in the top of the fifth, taking a walk.

Robert Henry got a base hit to reach first while Hawkins eased home on an overthrow at the base. Oscar Thomas LSU ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

Paul Dietzel, who coached the Louisiana State Tigers to the national football championship 20 years ago, will return to LSU as athletic director effective August 1. Dietzel, serving as athletic director at Indiana University since 1976, compiled a 46-23-3 overall record while at LSU, including 35-7-1 in the final five seasons. He will replace Carl Maddox who announced his retirement earlier this summer.

and Henry held down two bases for the Sluggers, then both were sent home on a double by Mickey Gillum an overthrow at the plate.

Terry Cooper took a base hit then Irving Hawkins at the top of the order hit a triple to score both runners.

Harry Farve opened the bottom of the fifth with a base hit. Bell got on base with a single. Lang scored Williams, running for Farve, on a double and Peters loaded the bases.

David "Kiki" Thompson slammed the ball to right field, scoring all three and coming home just ahead of the ball for a grand slam.

State Park programs inviting

Buccanneer beckons residents, visitors

CAMP STORE - Mrs. Gerald (Emelda Chadwick) Price Jr., manager of Camp Store at Buccanneer Park sells light bulbs to camper John Rousset, Marrero, La.

BIG ATTRACTION - Greg Smith, manager of Buccanneer State Park, views sign on wave pool construction site at the Waveland Park. Carter and Mullings, Inc., are general contractors and Architect is Fred Wagner of Bay St. Louis. Smith said plans call for the wave pool to be completed for the 1979 summer season.

PARK NATURALIST - Ken Goings, Buccanneer Park naturalist, explains tree and uses to Tom Slaton, Baton Rouge, La.

By ELLIS CUEVAS
Buccanneer State Park is the only Mississippi state park inside city limits, something which makes it unique, according to park manager Greg Smith.

Since Buccanneer Park is in the city limits of Waveland, some will ask why? Well, Waveland supplies, police, fire, garbage pickup, sewerage and water to the park.

Smith, who is in his second year at Buccanneer, said it is his fourth state park job.

"It is by far the best assignment I have ever had," he said, adding, "everyone has been so nice to me and my family."

"The campers are very good people and the local people are also real nice and they really make my wife and two daughters (one two weeks old) really enjoy living on the Gulf Coast in Hancock County," commented Smith.

Smith says the contract with the City of Waveland to supply city services to Buccanneer is working out beautifully.

Summertime is the peak period at Buccanneer with eight full-time, nine part-time and ten CETA employees on Smith's staff.

Buccanneer offers 104 camper sites, all have electricity and water and 90 have sewerage hook-ups.

There are pavilions, primitive camping areas, and a wading pool, with a Wave Pool scheduled next May.

Buccanneer offers a recreation room which has ping pong tables, fus ball, game machines, tennis courts, shuffle board, basketball courts and just plain old relaxing.

Smith said, "You would be amazed at how many Hancock County people utilize the park each week. They come with their campers on Thursday evening and stay until Sunday night. Of course many use the picnic areas, especially during the summer months."

Smith said there is a $1 adult and 50 cent child's fee on the pool to help to pay for the life guards who are duty whenever the wading pool is open. The pool is open until 9 p.m. and is closed on Monday.

The Camp store, managed by Emelda Chadwick Price, (her family were grocery operators for many years on Jeff Davis Avenue in Waveland) is open until 10 p.m. each night. The camp store is filled with just about anything a camper might need.

Smith said Mrs. Price keeps a good supply of camping items and anything a camper might forget, she will probably have it in stock.

Art Bailey is maintenance superintendent for Buccanneer Park.

His job is to see that everything is working properly, grass is cut, etc.

Norita Hawkins, Waveland, is secretary and Bob Wheelon and Ronnie Hode are park rangers.

Smith noted, "We have a lot of local folks working at Buccanneer. We want the local people to make use of all the facilities and programs we offer. We are a State Park, but we are here for the residents as well as the visitors."

"The back gate is open to make it easier for the local people to come to Buccanneer," he noted.

For the July 4th weekend Buccanneer was filled with campers on Thursday evening. Usually on a Friday evening Buccanneer is booked solid for the summer weekend, according to Smith.

The charges at Buccanneer for campers is low compared to other camping grounds. RV's or trailers with sewer hookup, $4.50 per night; pop ups or Vans $4.00 per night; tent camping, $4.00; water and electricity is included in these prices. In the primitive area a fee of $2.50 per night is charged.

A new feature at Buccanneer is bike rentals. "We just got the bicycles in and I am sure they will be a big hit with the campers," commented Smith.

A small deposit is charged on the use of basketballs, tennis rackets, etc., which is returned when the items are returned. Smith said that a deposit is necessary because too many balls and rackets come up missing.

The two central locations at Buccanneer Park are the registration house at the entrance and the Camp Store and recreation area.

Buccanneer puts out a regular schedule of events each week. Everyone is welcome to participate in such programs as exercise classes, movies, basket weaving, tennis, ping pong, shuffleboard tournaments and many other special events.

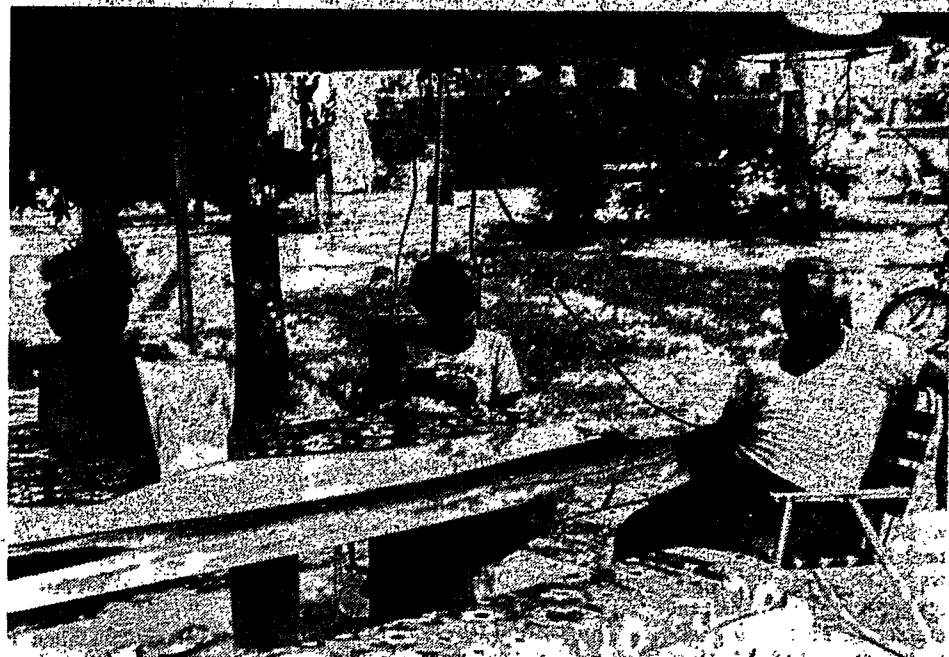

Buccanneer Park is a fun spot, it is hard to realize not many years ago it was a dump.

Greg Smith is really happy with the addition of a Putt-Putt golf course, which has just been approved by the Park Commission.

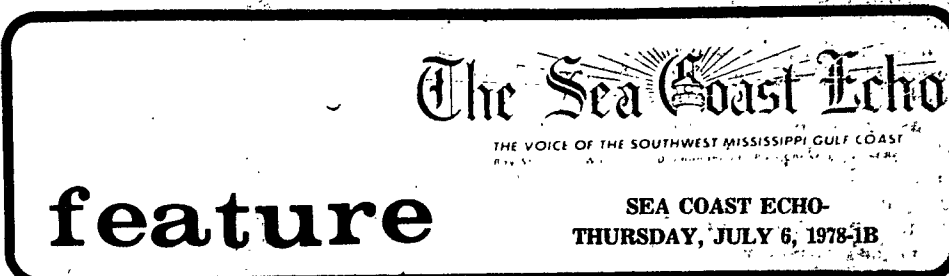

The Wave Pool something everyone is waiting for, according to Smith. "We will have something no other park in Mississippi can boast," added Smith.

An announcement last month by Col. Tom Edwards, director of Mississippi State Parks, on the Commission's decision to build 30 cabins has everyone in smiles, according to Smith.

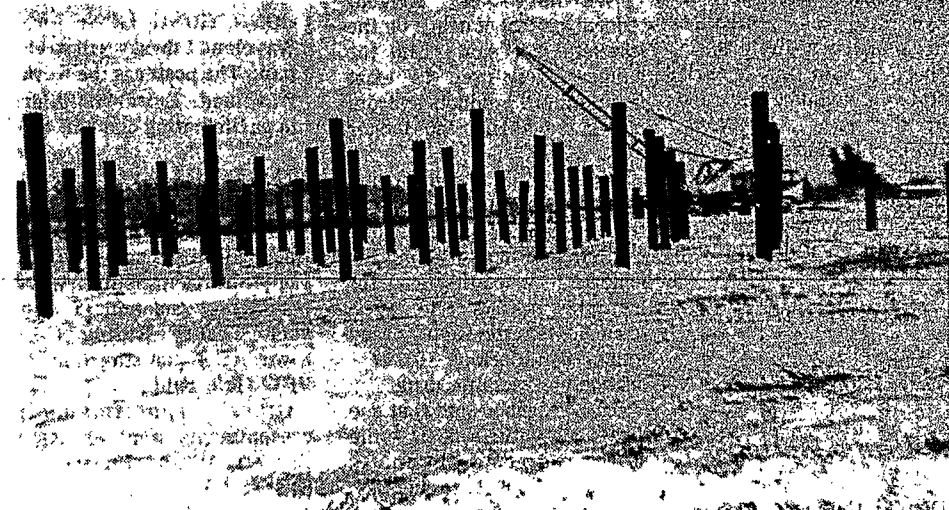

Waveland Mayor John Longo feels this way about Buccanneer, "It is the best thing that ever happened to Waveland and the Mississippi Gulf Coast."

BAY RESIDENTS ENJOY PARK - Regular campers at Buccanneer Park are Mr. and Mrs. Herb Cardin of Bay St. Louis as well as many other Hancock residents. Joycé Campbell of Alexandria, La., left, joins the Cardins in relaxing moments.

FUS BALL POPULAR - Fus ball attracts a lot of attention in Buccanneer's Recreation Hall. Campers enjoy the cool air and challenge of game.

STRONG FOUNDATION - Piling are being driven for wave pool scheduled for May, 1979, opening at Buccanneer Park.

SPLASHING ACROSS POOL - Youngsters enjoy splash across wading pool at Buccanneer State Park. A fee of 50 cents is charged to youngsters using the pool. Fee pay life guards on duty when pool is open.

TENNIS ANYONE - Anthony (Chuck) Osso, Fairfield, Ohio, gets in tennis game at Buccanneer State Park.

WADING POOL ACTIVE - Mrs. Mary (Maurigi) Osso, seated, formerly of Bay St. Louis and now of Fairfield, Ohio, enjoys pool with nieces and nephews on her vacation.

INDIAN ART - Mrs. Jennifer Smith, Lakeshire, Tenn., shows Indian Art exhibit in Recreation Hall to a group of children. A small fee is charged for supplies. Anyone interested is welcome at the classes.

PRIMITIVE CAMPING - The eastern part of Buccanneer Park is used for primitive camping by many under the large live oak, pine and sweet gum trees.

UM professor lobbys for drug law changes

Mississippi pharmacists may soon be allowed to substitute one brand of drug product for the one the doctor ordered, if the state follows the national trend, says a University of Mississippi pharmacy law professor.

Often several pharmaceutical companies produce the same drug, with one firm selling it under one brand name and the others under another brand, or a generic, or chemical name. A drug product substitution law would allow pharmacists to dispense the usually less expensive generic form of a drug for the brand name form of the same drug prescribed by a physician.

"Mississippi is one of the few states that have not repealed their ant substitution laws," said Dr. Helen Wetherbee, an assistant professor of health care administration in the Ole Miss School of Pharmacy, who teaches pharmacy and health law. "The law makes it illegal for pharmacists to substitute equivalent products for brands of drug products prescribed by the doctor," she stated.

Laws in some 40 states authorize drug product selection, she said, meaning that pharmacists have the right to decide whether to fill the doctor's prescription as specified, or to fill it with the same drug from a different pharmaceutical company.

Several attempts at repeal of Mississippi's ant substitution law have been made in recent years by consumer groups. Currently, the Mississippi Pharmaceutical Association is helping to design a new bill for repeal of the law.

"As it is now in Mississippi, when the doctor specifies the brand name of a drug on a prescription, the pharmacist must dispense that brand," Wetherbee said. "However, when the doctor uses the generic name of the drug, the pharmacist decides which of many equivalent products may be used to fill the prescription."

Almost every state passed an anti-substitution law 30 or 40 years ago as protection from sham or bogus drugs. Wetherbee said that nearly 40 states have since repealed their anti-substitution laws, allowing pharmacists to make decisions on which products to dispense.

Opposition to repeal of the Mississippi ant substitution

Caldwell attends

USM workshop in Long Beach

Donald Caldwell, assistant superintendent of Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District, recently attended a Community Education Workshop held on the Gulf Coast Regional Campus of the University of Southern Mississippi in Long Beach.

Dr. William Hetrick, director of the workshop, discussed responsibilities of the public school systems for all aspects of education as they relate to the community. In this way, the schools attempt to recognize the needs of the community and see that these needs are met.

Various workshops are offered throughout the year at USM. For more information contact the Department of Conferences and Workshops at any of the USM campuses.

DR. HELEN WETHERBEE

law comes mainly from manufacturers of more expensive drug products, and from some doctors, according to Wetherbee.

"Manufacturers of more expensive drug products have tried to raise the argument that less expensive equivalent products are of inferior quality," she said. "These manufacturers also have suggested that the potential legal liability of pharmacists will be increased with repeal of the anti-substitution law."

"I do not think there is really a problem that consumers will be sold drugs of inferior quality, with the Food and Drug Administration regulating drug standards," Wetherbee commented.

Some physicians oppose repeal of the anti-substitution law because they feel that placing the final decision on drug product selection with the pharmacist would interfere with their practice of medicine, she added.

But, she said, "I think that many physicians recognize that pharmacists are really the drug experts, and that physicians are willing to rely on the expertise of pharmacists in the drug product selection decision."

Wetherbee said that the nationwide trend toward repeal of anti-substitution laws can be attributed in part to a strong and active Food and Drug Administration, and in part to economic factors.

"We have very stringent federal control of drugs on the market," she said, "and the dangers that used to exist from impure products or from fraudulent claims no longer exist."

Repeal of the law also could result in eventual savings to the consumer, Wetherbee said. In addition to selling the generic form of the drug for less, pharmacists can pass on to consumers the savings they make by stocking fewer brands of the same drug.

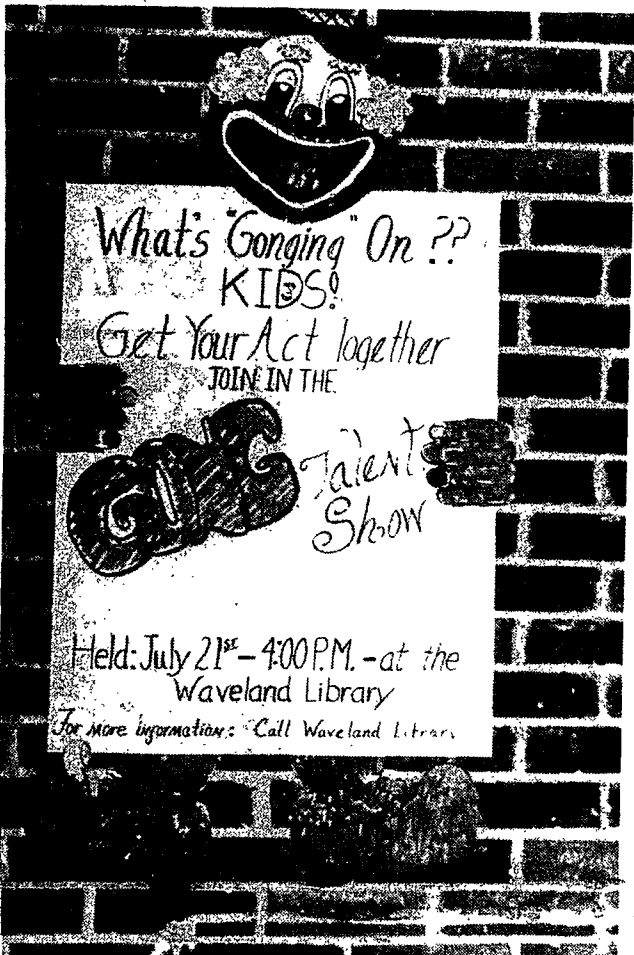

Dr. Wetherbee said that she disagrees with laws in some states requiring automatic substitution of the cheapest brand of a drug, because such laws do not allow the pharmacist to use discretion in substituting. A good law allowing substitution would have three requirements, she said.

"A good law will require that the purchaser be informed of the substitution, would allow the purchaser to veto the substitution, and would allow the pharmacist to use discretion and professional judgement in deciding whether to substitute or to dispense as written."

Repeal of the Mississippi law would most likely increase interaction between the pharmacist and the patient, Wetherbee said, since the patient can participate in and discuss and decision to substitute. She said that pharmacists already inform clients about drugs and their side effects.

Waveland Library fete set for local artist

A wine and cheese party and reception from 12:30 to 4 p.m. Friday will mark the opening of a two-week showing at the Waveland Library by artist Bob Richards of Bay St. Louis.

The show will run through July 20, according to Nancy Gex, event chairman.

Richards, who signs his work "R. J. Richards," is a New Orleans native and a self-taught artist. He has had shows in Houston, Dallas, Atlanta and Arkansas.

He specializes in oils, pastels, and is currently engaged in cypress knee carving.

Prior to becoming self-supporting through his art some nine years ago, Richards had worked with oil field mop-up operations as a fireman, and as a shrimp boat crewman.

He resides here with his two children, Bobby 11, and Chrissie, 10.

Antenna dangers cited by product safety group

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) has approved a regulation that would require manufacturers of citizen band (CB) base stations and television antennas to supply consumers with safety information at the time of purchase.

CPSC estimates that approximately 220 persons in 1975 and 275 in 1976 were electrocuted in accidents involving communications antennas. The majority of the electrocutions occurred as a result of antenna contact with power lines while the antennas were either being erected or taken down.

This number of deaths makes communications antennas the number one cause of electrocutions among consumer products.

The regulation - which will require warning labels, safety installation instructions, and written information on hazards - will affect an estimated 150 manufacturers of CB base station antennas, television antennas, and certain antenna supporting structures.

CPSC estimates that the cost of labels and installation instructions to the manufacturer will be between 10 cents and 35 cents per product item with a probably increase in the retail price of approximately $1 per unit. CPSC believes that the cost is justified in view of the severe nature of the hazard associated with these products.

The regulation will become effective 90 days after publication in the Federal Register.

CPSC urges consumers to seek professional advice before installing an outside antenna. Local electric utilities and CB organizations can provide information on local electrical code regulations and antenna mounting.

Pass Christian Library urges reading time in midst of swimming, picnics

By FLORENCE ROBBINS
Library Volunteer

The libraries are busy rying to entice children into their programs for summer reading with Scooter Mouse, reading clubs and awards. Now is the time to lure children into the world of books, hopefully never to leave that world again.

But what about those who are no longer children? Coast Episcopal High School has an excellent posted list of "Summer Reading", divided into classifications which could appeal to young and not-so-young.

Once upon a time in our educational system there was a list called "required reading". Probably such thinking is now obsolete but if there is one book which should be required reading for every one from 18 to 80 it is FUTURE SHOCK by Toffler.

Published in 1970, it is just as pertinent today. A movie made from it has been shown at least twice in the Harrison County Library System and we hope will be shown again.

This is not a book to be gobbled from cover to cover. Rather it should be taken in small doses although there are times it is difficult to put down. Although the library has it, it is a book to own. A good first course for this fare is THE GREENING OF AMERICA.

Winter reading is classics by an open fire. Summer reading is in a hammock beside a lake or, in the South at the close of siesta time in an air-conditioned room wearing minimal clothing. Much of the reading is lighter, too - a good new Gothic or fantasy, perhaps.

It was a joy to discover when the latest "best sellers" list offered no temptations that a "new" T.H. White had been published. THE BOOK OF MERLIN, beautifully edited and illustrated by the University of Texas Press, completes the ONCE AND FUTURE KING, the source book for the musical "Camelot".

It is delightful reading for the long, hot summer, full of studied anachronisms and barbed wit. Even the theme is timely now, although it was refused by its publishers in 1941 - "no more war". It can appeal to any age which enjoyed THE ONCE AND FUTURE KING, the Mary Stewart Arthurian series, THE CRYSTAL CAVE, etc. or whoever was fortunate enough to see "Camelot".

Summer is a good time for "Series". Somehow in the midst of picnics, swimming and sailing there is still time for reading. It is relaxing to put down Jakes' THE BASTARD and pick up the next in that series of seven. Of better literary merit but following the family through important historical dates are Elswyth Thane's Williamsburg series, starting with DAWN'S EARLY LIGHT.

With St. Simon's Island moving into prominence with our President, Eugenia Price's trilogy of history of that island starts with THE LIGHTHOUSE. It is available at the library in large print.

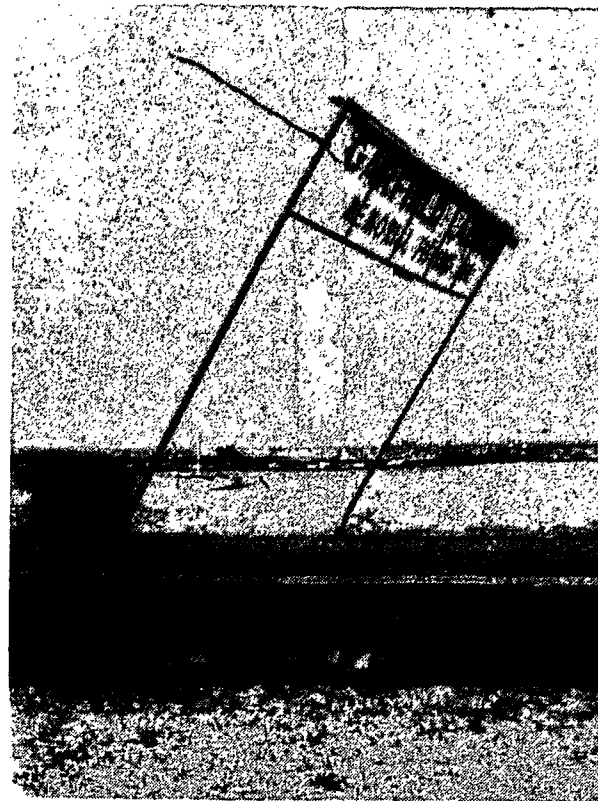

"Twice Upon a Time" - summer is a time for re-reading a favorite book or author. How long is it since you have read TO HAVE AND TO HOLD or THE LONG ROLL or other Johnston favorites. Esther Forbes and Mary Ellen Chase offer reading which is both entertaining and high calibre workmanship. Spend long, summer hours with Frances Parkinson Keyes in nearby Louisiana or her New England. A long book is welcome. These do not end too soon.

One writer in FUTURE SHOCK is quoted as saying that the young people feel they should not read anything older than 30 years. No more Shakespeare or nursery rhymes? FUTURE SHOCK also emphasizes the importance of fantasy and science fiction and explains their appeal to youth. The library has volumes of both. Try them - you might like them.

Don't overlook Tolkien. When you have retreated with your Arthur into the badger's cool cave on a hot afternoon after a steamy nap with a "Duch wife" (ask your librarian to look that one up for you!) travel into the never-never land of the hobbits. You may never want to come home to the burning sands of the Gulf Coast.

The library is a cool place to read and a place to get cool books to read at home.

Beneficial insects best pest control

Beneficial insects are the Mississippi cotton producer's best bet for controlling early insect pests, said Dr. H.C. Mitchell, entomologist Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"Insect pressure is moderate in many older cotton fields but generally below the threshold level. Populations of beneficial insects are generally high and should hold down early insect populations," said Dr. Mitchell.

"Producers should scout their fields and allow beneficials to work as long as possible. Withhold application of conventional insecticides until absolutely necessary," he added.

In a related development, the Environmental Protection Agency has revised the rotational restrictions on the emergency use insecticide materials Bolstar, Pydrin, Pounce, Ambush and Curacron.

The new time restriction for planting a field to a crop other than cotton following applications of Ambush, Pounce or Pydrin is 60 days. Bolstar remains at 12 months; Curacron has no rotational restrictions.

In county farm news, Scott County crops look good, said County Agent Charles Sanders. Most cotton fields are clean and beneficial insect numbers are high. Soybeans are about 90 percent planted. Early planted corn is growing well.

Practically all of the Jones County soybean crop is up to a good stand, said Harold Hardee, county agent. General crop conditions have improved with drier weather. The earlier cool weather delayed watermelons, but an average crop is expected.

About 95 percent of the soybean crop has been planted, reported Percie Stricklen, Tishomingo County agent. However, showers continue to cause grass and weed problems. Pastures are growing well, but hay harvesting is slow because of showers.

The Carroll County cotton crop is varying from five leaves to squaring heavily, reported George Alley, county agent. Soybean planting is about 90 percent complete; probably 60 to 70 percent of the crop was planted after June 10. Hornflies are building in beef cattle.

Lincoln County soybean crops generally look good and most fields are fairly clean of weeds, said Travis Tadlock, county agent. Plantings are about 75 percent complete. Cotton insects are heavy in older cotton, but beneficial insects should help control the pests.

Hinds County crops are progressing favorably, said County Agent Charles Estess. However, cotton producers are faced with the first generation of bollworms and budworms. Blister beetles and the soybean cyst nematode have also been reported. Older corn needs rain.

NASA's Atwell

gives journals to GCRL library

Dr. B. H. Atwell of the Earth Resources Laboratory, National Space Technology Laboratories, Bay St. Louis, has made a personal gift of publications to the Gunter Library of the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory, Ocean Springs.

Malcolm Ware, librarian, said the library does not regularly receive several of the journal titles included in the gift. Issues of nine journal titles, the majority devoted to geological oceanography, plus 83 miscellaneous publications (project reports and special reports) and 36 books, are very useful additions, he said.

VEEP NAMED Joseph H. Pettus, PetroUnited project development manager, has recently been named vice president of PetroUnited Terminals, a subsidiary of United Energy Resources Incorporated, officials announced. ## Local economic development programs outlined in Hancock

A multimedia learning kit designed to help community leaders across Mississippi strengthen economic development programs was recently introduced at a courthouse meeting by the Mississippi Research and Development Center.

Two years in the making, the "Preparing for Growth" learning kit included a manual written by Center Director Dr. Kenneth C. Wagner, three films, and an economic development game.

"What we're trying to do with the kit," explained Dr. Wagner, "is to make local leaders, people within the community making decisions, fully aware of everything it takes to compete successfully for new payrolls."

Two-day workshops are held with members of chambers of commerce, development groups, industrial foundations, and city and county officials.

During the first session, participants in the workshops view the three, 10-minute films, which were produced by Norris, Ltd., an educational consultant in Jackson.

Made on location in central Mississippi, the films feature residents of that community and several Center staff members. Gary Collins, well-known star of television and cinema, appears in and narrates the films.

The 16 mm, partially animated films depict the development activities by a citizens group in a fictional town called Duncan Fork.

The films trace the efforts of the group from its at-first unproductive endeavors to the successful new beginning of a sound economic development program.

To reinforce what workshop participants have seen in the films, they are given an opportunity to read Dr. Wagner's "Economic Development Manual" before the next session.

In this 158-page book, which Dr. Wagner prefers to call a "working manual," the author carries the reader through the process of developing an economic development program for his community.

During the final session of the workshop, participants work out specific development plans for their community and develop the specific steps required to deal with an actual industrial prospect.

"This exercise gives participants a chance to evaluate the strengths of their community's program," according to George McFarland, manager of the Industrial Readiness Branch of the Center. McFarland created the simulation exercise and now travels throughout the state presenting the workshop.

Agent for $50,000 from the Economic Development Administration funded the development of the simulation exercise and the production of the films.

Dr. Wagner's book was published by the University Press of Mississippi.

The kit, according to Dr. Wagner, is "the only one of its kind in the country." It was because of the uniqueness of the project that EDA awarded the Center the grant to prepare the kit.

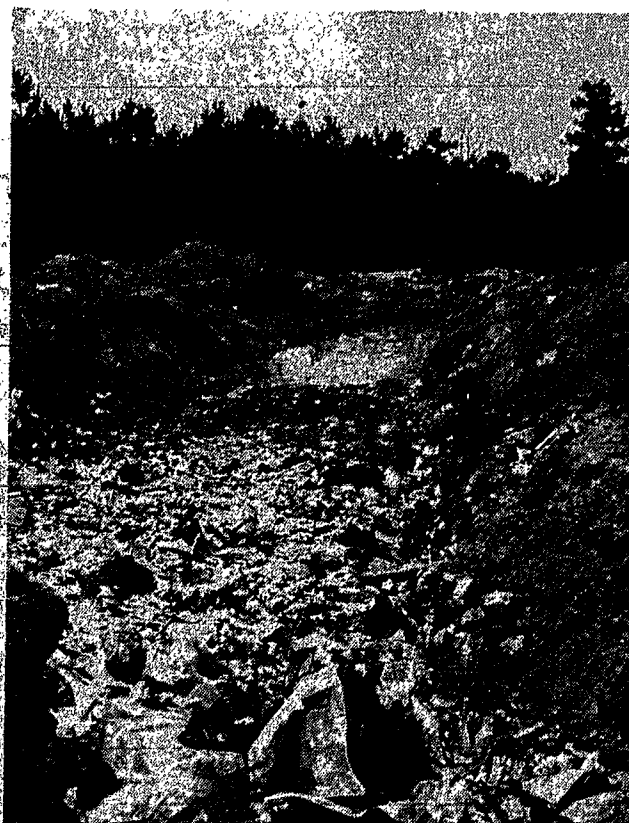

"In the past, the Center presented workshops for economic development groups without the mechanics of the kit," explained Dr. Wagner. "The kit now gives us much more sophisticated tools to work with.

"But the objective is the same as it always has been - to alert the leadership in the community to the problems surrounding economic development, to help provide them an opportunity to practice doing this," Wagner added.

"We focus on the fact that to get really top notch companies and to repeatedly attract investments, a community has to be strong on all fronts. This includes everything from having available industrial sites, a working community development plan, and equitable taxes to the appearance of the city or town," Dr. Wagner continued.

Workshops have been presented in more than 15 Mississippi communities. The goal of the Center is to present the workshop in all interested Mississippi communities, Dr. Wagner said, "because what we are talking about is essential for economic development to take place in Mississippi."
